English Language Proficiency Standards for LEP Students

FOREWORD

The world continues to shrink as our country embraces an increasingly diverse population. Ohio continues to follow this trend.

Ohio students represent more than 110 native or home languages, including Spanish, Somali, Arabic, Japanese, German, Russian, Vietnamese, Ukrainian, Korean, Serbo-Croatian, Albanian and Lao. Our communities and schools can benefit from these diverse language backgrounds and cultures by providing all students with opportunities to learn from the experiences and unique skills of one another.

Many students need support to develop English language skills needed to communicate effectively with others, participate in Ohio's classrooms and meet state academic content standards. To address these needs, the English Language Proficiency Standards in this document will serve as a resource for teachers and school staff who work with limited English proficient students in kindergarten through 12th grade. These standards define progressive levels of competence and serve as a guide for teachers in moving limited English proficient students towards proficiency, both in the English language and in Ohio's academic standards.

I would like to thank the educators who made critical contributions to these standards, as well as the teachers, instructional assistants, administrators and volunteers who provide students from diverse backgrounds with meaningful, high-quality educational experiences every day. Our communities will be strengthened by our collective support for all of our students.

STANDARDS FOR ENGLISH LANGUAGE PROFICIENCY

Introduction

In Ohio, more than 35,000 limited English proficient (LEP) students/English Language Learners (ELL) were enrolled in the state's elementary and secondary public schools during the 2006-2007 school year. The terms "limited English proficient" and "English Language Learners" refer to those students whose native or home language is other than English, and whose current limitations in the ability to understand, speak, read or write in English inhibit their effective participation in a school's educational program. The number of LEP students reported in Ohio for school year 2006-2007 represents an increase of 68 percent over the number reported five years previously and an increase of 182 percent over the number reported 10 years ago..

Like their native-English-speaking peers, LEP students in Ohio are expected to achieve high educational standards. Ohio's high expectations for academic achievement are designed to help ensure that all students are prepared to meet the challenges of the twenty-first century.

However, in order to achieve high educational standards in school and become contributing members in society in the United States, LEP students have the unique challenge of acquiring a new language and learning new cultural norms in addition to learning academic content and skills. Obviously, this is no easy task. To truly have the opportunity to learn and meet high standards, LEP students must have educationally sound alternative programs that are designed to address the students' particular needs. In other words, LEP students need to be provided with the right conditions to be successful learners.

Recognizing the challenge that LEP students have in achieving high academic standards while learning a new language, the United States Supreme Court, in the case of Lau v. Nichols (414 U.S., 1974), upheld a memorandum issued by the former U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which stated:

Where the inability to speak and understand the English language excludes national origin minority group children from effective participation in the educational program offered by a school district, the district must take affirmative steps to rectify the language deficiency in order to open its instructional program to these students (35 Federal Regulation 11595, May 25, 1970).

Further, the Supreme Court stated that simply placing LEP students in a regular classroom is not sufficient, and that "there is not equality of treatment merely by providing students with the same facilities, textbooks, teachers and curriculum; for students who do not understand English are effectively foreclosed from any meaningful education" (414 U.S. at 556, 1974). In its ruling, the Supreme Court did not mandate a particular educational program to address the needs of LEP students. School districts have the flexibility to decide which educational approach best meets the needs of their LEP students that will lead to their attaining the level of English proficiency they need to succeed.

Legal Responsibilities of School Districts in Serving LEP Students

In its publication, The Provision of an Equal Education Opportunity to Limited English Proficient Students (1992), the U.S. Department of Education, Office for Civil Rights, provides guidelines to school districts regarding their legal obligation to language minority students. The following is a summary of the guidelines.

First, school districts must identify all students whose primary or home language is other than English. Then, the district needs to assess all the students to determine if they are limited English proficient (LEP) and need special language assistance in order to effectively participate in the district's instructional program.

Once a school district has identified LEP students who need assistance, it must determine what kind of special language service program it will provide, and it must implement this program. In Ohio, no specific type of intervention program is prescribed. Thus, school districts have the flexibility to decide which educational approach best meets the needs of their LEP students. However, the program must be based on sound theory and best practice. In other words, the program must likely be effective in meeting the educational needs of its language minority students. Whatever program is selected, it must provide effective instruction that leads to academic achievement and timely acquisition of English proficiency.

School districts that implement LEP programs must ensure that staff are properly trained and that appropriate curricular materials are used. In addition, classroom facilities should be comparable to those used by other students. School districts also are responsible to effectively notify non-English speaking parents of school activities, which are also called to the attention of other parents. Such notices, to be effective, may have to be in a language (or languages) other than English.

Once a school district implements a special language program for its LEP students, it must monitor students' progress on a regular basis and take steps to modify the program if the students are not making reasonable progress.

Purpose of English Language Proficiency Standards

Given the special language needs of LEP students, and given both the legal and pedagogical obligation for schools to appropriately address these needs, it is important that English language proficiency (ELP) standards be developed. The Ohio Department of Education developed the standards in this document, with the assistance of a writing team representing Ohio educators in the fields of English as a second language (ESL) and bilingual education.

The purpose of the ELP standards in this document is to provide a framework which Ohio schools can use to design programs that meet their legal obligation to address the special language needs of LEP students. Specifically, the ELP standards describe the language competencies that LEP students need to develop in order to participate effectively in classrooms in which English is the language of instruction, to achieve Ohio's academic content standards, and to fully participate in U.S. society.

Framework of Ohio's ELP Standards

LEP students have two major goals in their development of English proficiency:

- to use English in their academic achievement in all content areas; and
- to use English to participate effectively in U.S. society.

In order to achieve these goals, LEP students need to develop English proficiency in the four communication domains of listening, speaking, reading and writing. Students also need to comprehend what they hear and what they read. Therefore, comprehension of both spoken and written English is an underlying competency that LEP students need to develop in order to achieve the above goals.

Given the proficiency goals and language domains indicated above, Ohio's ELP standards have been designed to provide a summary description of the English competencies that LEP students need to attain in order to learn successfully in classrooms where the language of instruction is English and to be able to participate fully in U.S. society. Specifically, the standards define competencies in the use of English in the four domains of listening, speaking, reading and writing. Comprehension, as exhibited through listening and reading, has been considered in the development of the standards. For each standard, benchmarks of progress have been established that reflect different levels of English proficiency.

The standards established for each of the four language domains are listed on the following page. It is important to note that all these standards relate to language that is:

- used in grade-appropriate academic settings;
- used in age-appropriate social settings; and
- appropriate for American social and cultural contexts.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE PROFICIENCY STANDARDS FOR LEP STUDENTS

Listening Standards in English for LEP Students

1. LEP students will develop the English listening skills required both for academic achievement and for communication in socially and culturally appropriate ways.
  - 1.1 Comprehend spoken instructions
  - 1.2 Identify main ideas and supporting details of spoken English
  - 1.3 Determine speaker attitude and point of view
  - 1.4 Comprehend the meaning of academic and/or specialized vocabulary when spoken
  - 1.5 Make inferences and predictions when listening to speakers

Speaking Standards in English for LEP Students

2. LEP students will develop the English speaking skills required both for academic achievement and for communication in socially and culturally appropriate ways.
  - 2.1 Speak fluently, using clear pronunciation and with appropriate intonation and stress
  - 2.2 Speak using appropriate grammar and vocabulary
  - 2.3 Speak for varied purposes, both formal and informal, with focus, relevance and cohesion

Reading Standards in English for LEP Students

3. LEP students will develop the English reading skills required both for academic achievement and for communication in socially and culturally appropriate ways.
  - 3.1 Demonstrate reading strategies
  - 3.2 Identify the meaning of written vocabulary
  - 3.3 Read with comprehension
  - 3.4 Read for varied purposes

Writing Standards in English for LEP Students

4. LEP students will develop the English writing skills required both for academic achievement and for communication in socially and culturally appropriate ways.
  - 4.1 Write using appropriate conventions and grammar
  - 4.2 Write for varied purposes and audiences, with appropriate tone and voice, using various media
  - 4.3 Write using the writing process
  - 4.4 Write using a range of vocabulary, sentence structures and verb tenses

Social and Cultural Competencies Required for Effective Communication

In order to communicate effectively in a new language, students need to understand the social and cultural context in which the language is used. Therefore, teachers who work with LEP students have a role in helping the students gain the social and cultural competencies required for effective communication in English. As indicated in the English as New Language Standards (National Board for Professional Teaching Standards, 1998), [Accomplished teachers] know that language and culture are interrelated, and that their students must arrive at an understanding of the new cultural setting in which they live and develop proficiency in their new language. Special challenges arise when deeply held values, beliefs, and understandings of the home culture that sustain a student's sense of identity conflict with the values and beliefs of the school. In such circumstances teachers proceed in a sensitive manner, alert to the potential for friction, respectful of cultural differences, aware of the value of the home language, and mindful of their obligation to educate students to function productively in mainstream society (p.1).

... [T]eachers understand that schools have cultures of their own. They know that newcomers may have expectations and behaviors based on prior experience of schooling in foreign settings that may facilitate or inhibit their academic experience in United States schools. They understand that students may bring values, beliefs, and behaviors that provide special support for the process of schooling. For example, students from cultural backgrounds that emphasize peer sociability tend to work well in small groups.

Given these understandings, teachers capitalize on the cultural assets their students bring to school. Teachers also know that some students may have school experiences that differ markedly from schooling in the United States or have had no prior schooling. Such students require sensitive assistance and support. For example, a student schooled in China may be perplexed by the notion of choosing a project or by an active learning station. Teachers, therefore, assist such students in adjusting to school in ways that are culturally appropriate and facilitate a positive academic experience (pp. 15-16).

Refer to page 99 for further information relating to students with limited formal schooling.

The following page lists some examples of school culture knowledge and competencies that should be addressed when helping LEP students achieve English proficiency.

English Language Proficiency Standards for LEP Students

Knowledge and Competencies Related to American School Culture

Knowledge of American school facilities and their functions

- ☐ Lockers
- ☐ Drinking fountains
- ☐ Cafeteria
- ☐ Library
- ☐ Gymnasium
- ☐ Student services (nurse, librarian, counselor, buses)

Understanding of American school policies and procedures

- ☐ Class schedules
- ☐ Reports cards
- ☐ Grades
- ☐ Tornado and fire drills
- ☐ Clothing and equipment for physical education classes
- ☐ Variety and purposes of tests
- ☐ Test-taking techniques
- ☐ Rules relating to plagiarism and cheating

Understanding of expressions of respect in American schools

- ☐ How to take turns appropriately
- ☐ How to interrupt appropriately
- ☐ Respect for others' possessions (e.g., do not touch or remove things from someone's desk without permission)
- ☐ Appropriate time for silence in different school settings
- ☐ Appropriate ways to get the teacher's attention in class
- ☐ Appropriate ways to demonstrate appreciation of others
- ☐ Appropriate ways to demonstrate respect for other speakers
- ☐ Norms of personal space

Understanding of expected classroom behavior in American schools

- ☐ Use eye contact during oral communication with others
- ☐ Make an effort to actively participate in class discussions
- ☐ Raise one's hand to speak
- ☐ Ask and answer questions appropriately
- ☐ Follow seating arrangements (may be assigned by the teacher)
- ☐ Follow procedures for moving about in the classroom, sharpening pencils, etc.
- ☐ Follow the teacher's directions; ask for clarification if needed
- ☐ Use materials appropriately; follow clean-up procedures
- ☐ Ask permission to leave the classroom
- ☐ Follow procedures for lining up

English Language Proficiency Standards for LEP Students

Understanding of expected out-of-classroom behavior in American schools

- ☐ Follow hallway rules (e.g., pass through the hall quietly, keep hands to one's self, pass through halls in the expected time, use a pass if required)
- ☐ Follow cafeteria procedures for lining up, ordering food, eating etiquette, cleaning up
- ☐ Use the restroom appropriately (turn off faucets, keep the restroom clean)
- ☐ Follow the bell schedule
- ☐ Follow procedures for tardiness and absence
- ☐ Follow the rules for taking the bus (e.g., be at the appropriate pick-up spot, be on time, follow bus behavior guidelines, follow procedures when the bus is missed)
- ☐ Demonstrate appropriate playground behavior (e.g., show appropriate norms for competition, interaction with fellow players)

Basic Academic Knowledge for Effective Communication in American School Settings

In addition to making sure that LEP students have the cultural and social knowledge required for achieving English proficiency in American schools, teachers also need to make sure that LEP students have the basic background knowledge needed to achieve English proficiency in American academic settings. For example, students who are new to U.S. schools may need help in gaining an understanding of the following:

- ☐ The U.S. system of measurements (e.g., time, money, distance)
- ☐ American holidays and holiday customs
- ☐ Famous American historical and literary figures
- ☐ Grade-appropriate knowledge of American icons, American poems and other literature
- ☐ U.S. history
- ☐ Local, state and national systems of government
- ☐ Local, state and national geography
- ☐ American fauna and flora

Relationship between Ohio's English Language Proficiency Standards and Ohio's English Language Arts Standards

Ohio's English Language Proficiency Standards are linked to Ohio's English Language Arts Standards; however, the two sets of standards are not the same. The English Language Arts Standards describe what all students, including limited English proficient (LEP) students, should know and be able to do in a specific academic content area, with a focus on reading, writing and oral communication skills for different purposes. On the other hand, the English Language Proficiency Standards have been specifically developed for LEP students and define progressive levels of competence in the acquisition of English. As such, Ohio's English Language Proficiency Standards have been designed to assist teachers in moving LEP students toward proficiency both in the English language and in Ohio's academic content standards. The goal of Ohio's English Language Proficiency Standards is to help LEP students build a foundation in English that will enable them to succeed in all their academic subjects, including English Language Arts, Mathematics, Science, Social Studies, Foreign Languages and Technology.

Levels of English Language Proficiency

The five levels are summarized below. It should be recognized that within each of these levels, students may represent a certain range of proficiencies (low, mid, high).

Prefunctional

Students at this level may understand isolated words (particularly school and social environment vocabulary), some high-frequency social conventions, and simple (single word or short phrase) directions, commands and questions. They rely on nonverbal cues, such as gestures and facial expressions, and frequent repetition and rephrasing to understand spoken language. In conversation, they may be able to provide basic information in response to requests and questions. They can ask one- or two-word questions without regard to structure and intonation.

Regarding reading and prereading skills, students at this level may demonstrate an understanding of concepts of print (e.g., front-to-back, top-to-bottom, left-to-right) and begin to track print. They may be able to distinguish letters from other symbolic representations. They can imitate the act of reading (e.g., holding a book and turning pages); however, they get meaning mainly through pictures. Students at this level participate in writing activities by drawing pictures. They may be able to copy letters or form them from memory and may be able to copy some words. They can imitate the act of writing (e.g., scribbling), but their text does not transmit a message. They may attempt to apply writing conventions but do so inappropriately or do so correctly only when copying.

Beginning

As LEP students' oral comprehension increases, they begin to imitate verbalizations by using single words or simple phrases and begin to use English spontaneously. They gradually construct more meaning from the words themselves, but the construction is often incomplete. They are able to generate simple texts that reflect their knowledge level of syntax. These texts may include a significant amount of nonconventional features, such as invented spelling, grammatical inaccuracies, pictorial representations, surface features and rhetorical patterns of the native language (i.e., ways of structuring text from native cultural and language).

Intermediate

At this level, students understand more complex speech, but still may require some repetition. They acquire a vocabulary of stock words and phrases covering daily situations. They use English spontaneously, but may have difficulty expressing all their thoughts due to a restricted vocabulary and a limited command of language structure. Students at this level speak in simple sentences, which are comprehensible and appropriate but which are frequently marked by grammatical errors. They may have some trouble comprehending and producing complex structures and academic language.

Proficiency in reading may vary considerably, depending upon the learners' familiarity and prior experience with themes, concepts, genre, characters and so on. They are most successful constructing meaning from texts for which they have background knowledge upon which to build. They are able to generate more complex texts, a wider variety of texts, and more coherent texts than beginners. Texts still have considerable numbers of non-conventional features.

Advanced

At this level, students' language skills are adequate for most day-to-day communication needs. Occasional structural and lexical errors occur. Students may have difficulty understanding and using some idioms, figures of speech and words with multiple meanings. They communicate in English in new or unfamiliar settings, but have occasional difficulty with complex structures and abstract academic concepts.

Students at this level may read with considerable fluency and are able to locate and identify the specific facts with the text. However, they may not understand texts in which the concepts are presented in a decontextualized manner, the sentence structure is complex, or the vocabulary is abstract. They can read independently, but may have occasional comprehension problems. They produce texts independently for personal and academic purposes. Structure, vocabulary and overall organization approximate the writing of native speakers of English. However, errors may persist in one or more of these domains.

Source of the above proficiency level descriptions: Beginning to Advanced: Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL), Inc., 1997, pp. 20-21.

Proficient/Trial-mainstream

At this final stage, students usually can participate in academic topical conversations without difficulty. In most cases, they can follow complex and multi-level directions without assistance, and they can understand oral information provided via electronic audio and video media. Students at this level usually speak English fluently in social and grade-level academic settings, and they control age-appropriate syntax and vocabulary in their speech.

Generally, students read and understand factual information in non-technical prose as well as discussions on concrete topics related to special events. They comprehend standard newspaper items addressed to the general reader, correspondence reports and technical materials. At this level, they can write short papers and clearly express statements of position, points of view and arguments. In their writing, they usually show control of varied sentence structures, spelling and vocabulary, expressing well-developed thoughts.

The chart on the next page indicates the five proficiency levels for each of the four communication domains: listening, speaking, reading and writing.

Criteria for Exiting LEP Program Effective School Year 2009-2010

The student is exited from the LEP program when he or she:

Obtains a composite score of 5 on the OTELA (Ohio Test of English Language Acquisition); or

Obtains a composite score of 4 on the OTELA, subsequently completes a trial period of mainstream instruction and obtains a composite score of 4 or above on the OTELA during the trial period of mainstream instruction.

Special Conditions

Students will not be exited from the LEP program before Grade 3.

Students who obtain a composite score of 4 or 5 on the OTELA in Grade 2 and obtain a composite score of 4 or above on the OTELA during the completion of a trial period of mainstream instruction in Grade 3 shall be exited from the program.

Transition Year – LEP students who obtain a composite score of 4 or 5 on the OTELA in 2008-2009 will be exited from the program if they obtain a composite score of 4 or 5 on the OTELA in 2009-2010.

Benchmarks of English Language Proficiency by Language Domains

Based on the proficiency levels described on the previous pages, benchmarks have been established for each language domain. These benchmarks describe the language skills that LEP students should be able to demonstrate as they enter into a given proficiency level while they are in the indicated grade span. For this reason, the lowest benchmark level is the Beginning level, which is the first step for those LEP students currently in the Prefunctional level.

In a number of cases, the benchmarks relate to only one or two grades within a grade span. In such cases, the specific grades are indicated within the given grade span. For example, “K” marked in the grade span K-12 indicates that the benchmark relates only to kindergarten students.

Like the standards, the benchmarks relate to language that is:

- used in grade-appropriate academic settings;
- used in age-appropriate social settings; and
- appropriate for American social and cultural contexts.

DEFINITION: LIMITED ENGLISH PROFICIENT

Ohio follows the same federal government definition of Limited English Proficient as described in the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 [P.L. 107-110, Title IX, Part A, Sec. 9101, (25)].

The term “limited English proficient,” when used with respect to an individual, means an individual –

- (A) who is aged 3 through 21;
- (B) who is enrolled or preparing to enroll in an elementary school or secondary school; and
- (C) (i) who was not born in the United States or whose native language is a language other than English; or
  - (ii) (I) who is a Native American or Alaska Native, or a native resident of outlying areas; and (II) who comes from an environment where a language other than English has had a significant impact on the individual’s level of English language proficiency; or
  - (iii) who is migratory, whose native language is a language other than English, and who comes from an environment where a language other than English is dominant; and
- (D) whose difficulties in speaking, reading, writing or understanding the English language may be sufficient to deny the individual:
  - (i) the ability to meet the State’s proficient level of achievement on State assessments described in section 1111(b)(3);
  - (ii) the ability to achieve successfully in classrooms where the language of instruction is English; or
  - (iii) the opportunity to participate fully in society.

PROFILE OF OHIO'S LIMITED ENGLISH PROFICIENT (LEP) STUDENTS/ENGLISH LANGUAGE LEARNERS (ELL)

Ohio's LEP students represent more than 110 different native or home languages. The top 10 language groups include Spanish, Somali, Arabic, Japanese, Pennsylvania Dutch (a dialect of German used by the Amish), Russian, Vietnamese, Ukrainian, Korean and Serbo-Croatian.

Many of Ohio's LEP students are children of families who have recently immigrated to the United States from other countries. According to a survey conducted by the Ohio Department of Education in March-April 2007, 129 Ohio school districts reported serving a total of 11,356 immigrant students who have been enrolled in U.S. schools less than three years. People immigrate to the United States for a variety of reasons. They may come to join other family members or to seek an improved economic opportunity. Others are seeking refuge from political repression or persecution in their home countries. According to the Ohio Department of Job and Family Services, Refugee Services Office, 3,542 new refugees arrived and resettled in Ohio in 2006-2007. The refugees' countries of origin included Somalia, Burma, Vietnam, Russia, Uzbekistan, Cuba, Burundi, Ethiopia, Ukraine, Eritrea, Liberia, Iran and Sudan. Since 1999, more than 12,000 refugees have settled in Ohio. In addition to the primary resettlement of refugees in Ohio, there has been a large secondary migration to Ohio from other states. In the Columbus metropolitan area alone, it is estimated that there are between 25,000 – 30,000 recently arrived Somali refugees.

Other groups of Ohio's LEP students are from families that have been in the United States for many years but speak languages other than English at home. For example, Ohio's schools enroll students of Puerto Rican, Mexican-American and other Latino backgrounds for whom Spanish is the home language. A significant number of Spanish-speaking children are members of migrant agricultural working families. More than 1,600 migrant children were enrolled in Ohio's elementary and secondary schools during the 2006-2007 school year. Also, many children from the Amish communities in northeastern Ohio learn German (Pennsylvania Dutch) as their first language. Approximately 1,050 Amish LEP students were enrolled in Holmes County schools during 2006-2007.

Ohio's LEP students include those who have had the benefit of prior education, including literacy development in their native languages. Other LEP students, especially those from refugee families, have had little or no prior formal educational experiences.

Ohio's goal for all LEP students is to attain English proficiency so that they can achieve the State's academic standards and fully participate in U.S. society. However, the length of time required to attain English proficiency will vary according to a number of factors, including age, grade level, extent of prior formal schooling and current level of English proficiency.

Students with Limited Formal Schooling

Students with limited formal schooling (LFS) are generally recent arrivals to the United States whose backgrounds differ significantly from the school environment they are entering. This category includes students whose schooling was interrupted because of war, poverty, patterns of migration or other reasons, as well as students coming from remote, rural settings with little prior opportunity for sequential schooling. These students may exhibit some of the following characteristics:

English Language Proficiency Standards for LEP Students

- Pre- or semi-literacy in their native language;
- Minimal understanding of the function of literacy;
- Performance significantly below grade level; and/or
- A lack of awareness of the organization and culture of school.

(Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages, Inc., 1997, p.21)

A student's previous experiences with education significantly affect the ease and rapidity with which he or she learns English and other academic material. Collier (1989) found that English learners require at least five to seven years of instructional time to reach academic parity with native English speakers. But, for students with limited formal schooling, Collier and Thomas found that the achievement of academic parity can be delayed an additional one to five years (1989). The primary explanation for this is that students with limited or no experience in the classroom have acquired a different set of skills than those who have had more formal education experiences.

Those students with more experience in the classroom have acquired and developed learning strategies they can apply to their new learning and thus are likely to progress more rapidly than those who have had little or no exposure to formal education. An area where this is particularly obvious is literacy. Students who have had experiences with books have developed a set of skills that allows them to use books, even though in a new language, more rapidly than those who have not had this experience. For example, students who are familiar with books know that words carry meaning and that pictures give clues to content, and they are able to apply this previous knowledge to more rapidly extend their comprehension of new printed material. In contrast, non-literate students of any age need to start by establishing an awareness of the connection between oral language and print, and progress through all the stages of literacy learning.

In addition to lacking the tools of literacy, students with no previous educational experience have not developed knowledge of or comfort with classrooms and classroom routines. Thus, these students enter the classroom filled with anxiety and a lack of self-confidence. Students with limited or no school experience need to quickly learn appropriate school behaviors and expectations. For example, students must learn where to sit, when to sit, how to volunteer information, what information to volunteer and when to change classes. They also must learn that the teacher asks questions even though he or she already knows the answers, and that they must answer the questions anyway! They need to learn time management skills such as arriving in class on time, reaching the bus on time and assessing how much time is necessary to complete a learning task.

Because of the lack of previous school schema, LFS students need specifically to be taught the skills and knowledge about the schooling situation that other students bring with them. The major areas in which LFS students need special assistance or direct instruction include orientation to the American school setting and structure, behavioral knowledge and academic information. Refer to pages 6-7 for information relating to specific knowledge and competencies that may need to be directly taught to LFS students.

GLOSSARY

*Note: Definitions followed by an asterisk (*) indicate that the source of the definition is from K-12 English Language Arts Content Standards, published by the Ohio Department of Education in 2003.*

affix	A word element that is added to a base word, either before (prefix) or after (suffix), which changes the meaning or grammatical function of a word. An example of a prefix is re- , as in reprint . An example of a suffix is -en , as in oxen .*
antonym	A word opposite in meaning to another word (e.g., good and bad).*
brainstorming	A prewriting technique in which students, either alone or in groups, jot down all words or phrases that come to mind on a topic to expand the range of available ideas, to solve a problem or to clarify a concept.*
cognates	Words related by derivation, borrowing, or descent and having similarities in written form and/or pronunciation (e.g., president in English and presidente in Spanish)
cohesion	The quality found in writing or formal speaking in which the ideas are clearly arranged so a reader or listener can follow the progression from one idea to the next.*
comparison and contrast	An organizational structure of text in which a description of similarities and differences between two or more things occurs.*
comprehension	The process in which a reader constructs meaning through interaction with text; accurately understanding what is written or said.*
connotation	The attitudes and feelings associated with a word as opposed to a word's literal meaning.*
context clues	Information a reader may obtain from a text that helps confirm the meaning of a word or group of words.*
conventions	The accepted rules of written and spoken language.*
cues	Hand, body or facial gestures and/or context clues that communicate meaning with little or no use of language.*
decode	To analyze spoken or graphic symbols of a familiar language to ascertain their intended meaning. Note: To learn to read, one must learn the conventional code in which something is written in order to decode the written message.*
denotation	The literal or “dictionary” meaning of a word.*

English Language Proficiency Standards for LEP Students

description	One of the four traditional forms of composition in speech and writing that gives a verbal picture of a character and an event, including the setting in which they occur.*
editing	See writing process .
e.g.	Exempli gratia (Latin), meaning “for example.”*
figurative language	Language enriched by word images and figures of speech (e.g., metaphor, simile, personification).*
fluency	The act of reading easily, smoothly and automatically with a rate appropriate for the text, indicating that students understand meaning.*
focus	The center of interest or attention; in writing and speaking, the central idea.*
genre	An established class or category of artistic composition or literature (e.g., poetry, drama or novel).*
graphic organizer	A method of organizing information that incorporates the use of outlines, T-lists, Venn diagrams, or other graphic or pictorial devices.*
high-frequency word	A word that appears many more times than most other words in spoken or written language.*
homograph	A word with the same spelling as another word, whether or not pronounced alike, as pen (a writing instrument) vs. pen (an enclosure).*
homonym	A word with different origin and meaning but the same oral or written form as one or more other words, as bear (an animal) vs. bear (to support) vs. bare (exposed). Homonyms include homophones and homographs.*
homophone	A word with different origin and meaning but the same pronunciation as another word, whether or not spelled alike (e.g., hair and hare ).*
hypothesize	To make an assertion about something assumed but not positively known.*
idiom	A combination of words that is not strictly in accordance with grammatical rules and often possesses a meaning other than its grammatical or logical one (e.g., an easy test might be described as a piece of cake ). Note: LEP students usually are not familiar with most idioms and idiomatic phrases used in daily speech in the classroom and found in writing. Therefore, teachers need to take time to explain idioms and make sure that the LEP students understand them.
intonation	The rise and fall of a voice pitch.*
language	The systematic use of sounds, signs and symbols as a method of communication; in writing, the choice of words used to convey meaning.*

English Language Proficiency Standards for LEP Students

main idea	The gist of a passage; the central thought; the chief topic of a passage expressed or implied in a word or phrase; the topic sentence of a paragraph; a statement in sentence form which gives the stated or implied major topic of a passage and the specific way in which the passage is limited in content or reference.*
media	A means of communication, especially of mass communication, such as books, newspapers, magazines, radio, television, motion pictures, recordings and the Internet.*
metaphor	A figure of speech in which an implied comparison is made between two unlike things (e.g., he's a tiger on the football team ).*
mood	The feeling or atmosphere that a writer creates for a reader; a reflection of an author's attitude toward a subject or theme.*
narration	One of the four traditional forms of composition in speech and writing that tells a story or gives an account of something, dealing with sequences of events and experiences, though not necessarily in strict order.*
persuasion	One of the four traditional forms of composition in speech and writing that moves the reader by argument or entreaty to a belief or position. *
persuasive technique	A method used in speaking or writing to get an audience to agree with the speaker's or writer's point of view.*
plot	The careful sequencing of events in a story generally built around a conflict. Stages of plot include exposition (background), rising action, climax, falling action and denouement (resolution).*
point of view	The perspective or attitude of a narrator of a piece of literature.*
prefix	See affix .
prewriting	See writing process .
scaffolding	A process in which more extensive instructional supports are provided early in learning and gradually withdrawn as the students gain more skill and independence (Chamot and O'Malley, 1994).
setting	The time and place of the action of a literary work.*
sight word	A word that is immediately recognized as a whole and does not require word analysis for identification.*
simile	A figure of speech in which a comparison is made between two unlike things using the words like or as (e.g., she's as sly as a fox ).*

English Language Proficiency Standards for LEP Students

skim and scan	To examine or read something quickly, but selectively, for a particular purpose.*
speak clearly	To pronounce at a level of clarity that does not impede communication. (Note: In the case of limited English proficient [LEP] students, “speak clearly” is not the same as “speak with native-like pronunciation.”)
style	An author’s distinctive manner of expression.*
suffix	See affix .
support	Instructional strategies that are designed to assist students in either comprehending speech and written texts or producing meaningful speech and written texts. Strategies include the use of visual aids, manipulatives, cues, graphic organizers, modified speech and simplified written texts, questioning and probing for clarification, explanations, modeling, and peer tutoring. Limited support – A minimal use of the supports indicated above, only on an “as-needed” basis. Extensive support – A systematic and regular use of the supports described above.
symbol	A concrete thing used to suggest something larger and more abstract.*
synonym	One of two or more words in a language that have similar meanings (e.g., answer and respond ).*
syntax	The way in which sentences are formed; the grammatical rules that govern their formation; the pattern or structure of word order in sentences, clauses and phrases.*
T-list	A graphic organizer used for note taking to record main ideas and supporting details with or without scaffolding (Chamot and O’Malley, 1994).
text structure	An author’s method of organizing a text (e.g., sequencing, compare and contrast, cause and effect, or problem-solution). *
theme	A topic of discussion or writing; a major idea or proposition broad enough to cover the entire scope of a literary work or work of art. Note: A theme may be stated or implied, but clues to it may be found in the ideas that are given special prominence or tend to recur in a work.*
tone	The reflection of an author’s attitude toward his or her subject.*
tools to judge the quality of writing	These include rubrics, checklists and feedback from other persons.
topic sentence	A sentence intended to express the main idea in a paragraph or passage.*

English Language Proficiency Standards for LEP Students

Venn diagram	A mapping technique using overlapping circles that show features either unique or common to two or more concepts.*
visual aid	An instructional device, such as a chart, map, diagram, cutaway or overlay, that helps a reader comprehend information.*
voice	In many languages, a syntactic pattern that indicates the verb-subject relationship; the principal voices in English and many other languages are active and passive.
writing process
